

Sioux Chief Hosts Contractors from Denver

KANSAS CITY, MO, June, 2018 -- Sioux Chief Manufacturing recently hosted a group of mechanical contractors from Denver, Colorado for a tour of the manufacturing plant and headquarters in Kansas City, MO. The group included five visitors from HPE Inc., a full-service mechanical contractor since 1947.

The visitors were accompanied by Tobi Gibson from TM Sales and were met by the Sioux Chief team for a tour of the manufacturing plant, distribution/warehouse, and a round-table discussion.

The first day of the tour, the group visited Sioux Chief's copper and extrusion departments at the plant in Peculiar, MO. Later, the group was joined by others from Sioux Chief for dinner at Top Golf. The next day was spent at the Kansas City facility, touring the manufacturing plant and participating in a round-table discussion.

Bill Klein, a Site Superintendent with HPE, was able to see new opportunities from the tour right away. "It was very informative and we are already talking about ways to utilize more Sioux Chief products on our current projects and in the future."

Another visitor, Project Manager Daniel Anthon, was impressed by the commitment to quality seen on the production floor. "What stood out to our team was that although Sioux Chief is utilizing cutting edge manufacturing technology to keep customer cost low, nearly every product is still handled directly by a real person before packaging and shipment." said Anthon. "This gave our entire team a level of confidence in the Sioux Chief product that's hard to duplicate without being there and seeing the entire process."
